Proposed by: Benjamin Wilding Seconded by: Tamsin Brown

We are two first years studying German and Biomedical Sciences who have a common passion for E&E, shown by:

- Hadassah: attends Vegsoc and Oxhub events, interest in reducing food waste, volunteers for Jacari, wrote a nutritional guide for Veggiepledge
- Nyasha: helped set up E&E brunch, committed to sustainable fashion choices
- Between us we have a good awareness of what's going on in Oxford, from vintage clothing sales to organic markets!

We intend to:

- Support previous officer's initiatives
- Investigate setting up Green Impact scheme at St John's
- Revitalising E&E brunch to make it more interactive and informative
- Investigate setting up a vegetable garden
- Gauge interest in the facilitation of individual vegan cookery
- Incentivise ecological choices such as Veggiepledge and reusable bags

We want to raise awareness on environmental and ethical issues, and inspire people to take action in fun and achievable ways.

Hello,

At the end of my first year of Geography I not only have an extended array of colouring pens but a newfound knowledge of and passion for environmental and ethical issues. I would love to help St John's support ethical and environmental campaigns and make a difference. For this role I would:

- Continue the Living Wage and Food Bins projects
- Introduce my own ideas including recycling bins in Kendrew Café, a charity fashion show and offering a delivery service for glass recycling
- Create a new forum, to form and discuss ideas and will do this using my experience from running sixth form forum at school
- Run successful Fairtrade Brunches because I am organised and passionate about food
- Be friendly, engaging and deal effectively with queries using my experience as a Student Ambassador

Hi, I'm Clarissa, a first year English student. I've been PRAT (I organise pizza and snacks for bops and JCR meetings) for the last two terms and would like to be more involved in the JCR and making John's a nice college to be at especially to be in a position to help support the incoming freshers as they settle down into university life next term and to be a point of contact between deans and students. I have been trained as a first responder and am hoping to be a peer supporter from next year. As a result of all my PRATting, I have lots of experience arranging events and providing drinks and nibbles tea is actually a personal expertise, and I would have great pleasure putting on lovely lunches and Tommy White teas for you all next term!
